Death at Carp High, the first in the six part series, begins at the beach when high school seniors, Jake Brown and his best friend, Dean, spot a body floating beyond the waves while surfing one morning before school. They recognize the corpse and set out to solve how it ended up drowned in the ocean. What starts out as youthful enthusiasm, quickly evolves into something more dangerous. Threats from a beefy football player and a local sheriff, Spanish II, and a decided lack of romance in his life are some of the obstacles Jake will have to overcome. The last problem may be the most pressing. Fortunately, its the first to be resolved! The story is fast-paced and dialog driven.

Perfect for a summer day at the beachor, in case you dont happen to live by the ocean and its not the middle of July, a comfortable couch, bed, or toilet seat. Keep your eye out for the sequels.
